Carrier's Annual Address
TO THE PATRONS OF
"THE COLUMBIAN."
JANUARY 1, 1870.

THE OLD YEAR.

Weary and worn, with snowy beard,
The old year comes, no longer feared,
With tottering limbs, strength well nigh spent,
A few brief moments Time hath lent,
Ere he must take his place with those
Over whose forms the grave doth close.
We owe thee much, old Sixty-nine,
Sorrow and joy, foul days and fine,
Sickness to some, to others health,
To some grim want, to others wealth.

DEATHS.

Death claimed his victims in thy reign,
Many of those whose like again
We scarce expect on earth to see.
Exponent of philanthropy,
Time hardly will efface thy name,
Or dim, great PEABODY, thy fame.
On either side the ocean's wave
Rise heartfelt thanks to him who gave
So freely, and so grandly too,
To noble objects, not a few,
A sorrowing nation hears with grief
The loss of one who once was Chief,
Honest and true, oh! PIERCE to thee
Belong the plaudits of the free;
In battle's fray and civil life,
In statesman's chair or scenes of strife,
Thy fame was fairly, nobly won.
STEWART and WOOL, both veterans gray,
Have from their stations passed away.
Death, thou hast been the only foe
With power to bow their heads so low!
KENDALL, thou earnest'st most glorious praise
And great renown in Jackson's days.
WALKER, thy name with Polk is known,
Not for his merits but thine own.
All these have fallen before thy dart
Oh! Death to prove how great thou art!
Nor should our own dead be forgot,
Many of those who were, are not;
Childhood and age have passed away
To wait the last great Judgment day,
And many a sorrowing heart, we fear,
Will sadly greet the new born year.

MARRIAGES.

But turn we from so sad a theme
To contemplate sweet "love's young dream,"
Of bridal robes, and blushing bride,
The happy bride-groom by her side,
(Of Cupid's arrows keen the sign,)
Thou had'st thy share, old Sixty-nine.
Among the rest two seas were wed,
The Mediterranean and the Red;
The great Canal is built at last,
And through its waters safe have passed
The Queen of France, and Austria's lord,
Those mighty by the pen and sword,
Nobles by scores, who wond'ring praise
This grandest work of modern days.

FIRES.

The Fire Fiend, with lurid glare
Hath filled with smoke and flame the air,
With horrid glee he sendeth forth
His messengers both South and North,
Eastward and Westward, where they go
Destruction marks their path, and woe,
Fortunes like dreams are swept away
And millions used his debts to pay,

WOMEN'S RIGHTS.

The gentle sex demand more rights,
And promise divers savage fights,
Though what they want Heaven only knows;
'Twere better if they'd talk of clothes,
And germane topics like to those
Of paniers, chignons, furbelows;
Leave votes and politics to men,
Govern their own households and then
With pleasure we once more will see
Pure, lovely, femininity.

ELECTIONS.

When Pennsylvania's vote we scan
We find that Geary is the man,
The "gory" Geary, pompous, vain,
To be our Governor again.
And here once more we plainly see
The sad results of apathy—
Had Democrats their duty done
The battle had been surely won,
But fraud and sloth each struck a blow
The better man to overthrow.
At home we've had perplexity;
To overthrow the nominee
Chalfant fought hard, but could not win,
Although he struggled to get in,
But rotten "rings," with money too,
Were not enough for Buckalew.
The Empire State acquires new fame
And vindicates its ancient name;
Eleven years we've had to wait
For Democrats to gain the State.
At length 'tis done in honest fight,
And Wrong is conquered by the Right.

GOLD GAMBLING.

The Nation's Treasury affairs
Have been controlled by bulls and bears,
With trade deranged and taxes high
In vain to save, the people try,
Whilst want increased a hundred fold
That knaves might speculate in gold;
And, to the Nation's lasting shame,
'Tis said the Presidential name
Is not unknown, if truth be told,
In sundry transactions in gold.
When bulls tossed gold (the story's true)
From thirty up to sixty-two,
The bears called in, some aid to get,
A member of the Cabinet,
Disgraceful story to relate
Gamblers assisted by the State.

THE COLUMBIAN.

Throughout the year we've met success;
Our readers, we will now confess,
Have grown in number vastly more
Than any previous year before.
Our earnest, heartfelt thanks are due
To all our steadfast friends and true,
Who gave us aid, and comfort too,
And stood by us when things looked "blue."
With joy we greet them all again
In this New Year's COLUMBIAN.

THE NEW YEAR.

The young New Year, fresh, rosy, bright,
Bursts joyously upon our sight;
We greet thee gladly, hoping more
Of good for us thou hast in store,
Health, wealth and happiness, in fine,
More than we got from Sixty-nine.
Above all, grant us through thy days
To give the great Creator praise.
For daily blessings we enjoy,
Our gratitude we should employ.
Now to our friends, both far and near,
We wish a happy, glad New Year!

Miscellaneous.

UNPARALLELED ADVENTURE OF ONE HANS PFAALL.

Matters being thus arranged, I contrived, by the aid of my wife, and with the greatest secrecy and caution, to dispose of what property I had remaining, and to borrow, in small sums, under various pretences, and without giving any attention (I am ashamed to say) to my future means of repayment, no inconsiderable quantity of ready money. With the means thus accruing I proceeded to procure at intervals, cambric muslin, very fine, in pieces of twelve yards each; twine; a lot of the varnish of caoutchouc; a large and deep basket of wicker-work, made to order; and several other articles necessary in the construction and equipment of a balloon of extraordinary dimensions. This I directed my wife to make up as soon as possible, and gave her all requisite information as to the particular method of proceeding. In the meantime I worked up the twine into net-work of sufficient dimensions; rigged it with a hoop and the necessary cords; and made purchase of numerous instruments and materials for experiment in the upper regions of the upper atmosphere. I then took opportunities of conveying by night, to a retired situation east of Rotterdam, five iron-bound casks, to contain about fifty gallons each, and one of a larger size; six tin tubes, three inches in diameter, properly shaped, and ten feet in length; a quantity of a particular metallic substance or semi-metal which I shall not name, and a dozen demijohns of a very common acid. The gas to be formed from these latter materials is a gas never yet generated by any other person than myself—or at least never applied to any similar purpose. I can only venture to say here, that it is a constituent of azote, so long considered irreducible, and that its density is about 37.4 times less than that of hydrogen. It is tasteless, but not odorless; burns, when pure, with a greenish flame, and is instantaneously fatal to animal life. Its full secret I would make no difficulty in disclosing, but that it of right belongs (as I have before hinted) to a citizen of Nantz, in France, by whom it was conditionally communicated to myself. The same individual submitted to me, without being at all aware of my intentions, a method of constructing balloons from the membrane of a certain animal, through which substance any escape of gas was nearly an impossibility. I found it, however, altogether too expensive, and was not sure, upon the whole, whether cambric muslin with a coating of gum caoutchouc, was not equally as good. I mention this circumstance, because I think it probable that hereafter the individual in question may attempt a balloon ascension with the novel gas and material I have spoken of, and I do not wish to deprive him of the honor of a very singular invention.

On the spot which I intended each of the smaller casks to occupy respectively during the inflation of the balloon, I privately dug a small hole; the holes forming in this manner a circle twenty five feet in diameter. In the centre of this circle, being the station designed for the large cask, I also dug a hole of greater depth. In each of the five smaller holes, I deposited a canister containing fifty pounds, and in the larger one a keg holding one hundred and fifty pounds of cannon powder. These—the keg and the canisters—I connected in a proper manner with covered trains; and having let into one of the canisters the end of about four feet of slow-match, I covered up the hole, and placed the cask over it, leaving the other end of the match procuding about an inch, and barely visible beyond the cask. I then filled up the remaining holes, and placed the barrels over them in their destined situation!

Besides the articles above enumerated, I conveyed to the depot, and then secreted, one of M. Grimm's improvements upon the apparatus for condensation of the atmospheric air. I found this machine, however, to require considerable alteration before it could be adapted to the purpose to which I intended making it applicable. But, with severe labor and unremitting perseverance, I at length met with entire success in all my preparations. My balloon was soon completed. It would contain more than forty thousand cubic feet of gas; would take me up easily, I calculated, with all my implements, and if I managed right'y, with one hundred and seventy-five pounds of ballast into the bargain. It had received three coats of varnish, and I found the cambric muslin to answer all the purposes of silk itself, being quite as strong and a good deal less expensive.

Everything being now ready, I exacted from my wife an oath of secrecy in relation to all my actions from the day of my first visit to the bookseller's stall; and promising, on my part, to return as soon as circumstances would permit, I gave her what little money I had left, and bade her farewell. Indeed I had no fear on her account. She was what people call a notable woman, and could manage matters in the world without my assistance. I believe, to tell the truth, she always looked upon me as an idle body--a mere make-weight—good for nothing but building castles in the air—and was rather glad to get rid of me. It was a dark night when I bade her good bye, and taking with me, as aides de-camp, the three creditors who had given me so much trouble, we carried the balloon, with the car and accoutrements, by a roundabout way, to the station where the other articles were deposited. We there found them all unmolested, and proceeded immediately to business.

It was the first of April. The night, as I said before, was dark; there was not a star to be seen; and a drizzling rain, falling at intervals, rendered us very uncomfortable. But my chief anxiety was concerning the balloon, which, in spite of the varnish with which it was defended, began to grow rather heavy with the moisture; the powder also was liable to damage. I therefore kept my three duns working with great diligence, pounding down ice around the central cask, and stirring the acid in the others. They did not cease, however, impertuning me with questions as to what I intended to do with all this apparatus, and expressed much dissatisfaction at the terrible labor I made them undergo. They could not perceive (so they said) what good was likely to result from their getting wet to the skin, merely to take a part in such horrible incantations. I began to get uneasy, and worked away with all my might; for I verily believe the idiots supposed that I had entered into a compact with the devil, and that, in short, what I was now doing was nothing better than it should be. I was, therefore, in great fear of their leaving me altogether. I contrived, however, to pacify them by promises of payment of all scores in full, as soon as I could bring the present business to a termination. To these speeches they gave of course their own interpretation; fancying, no doubt, that at all events I should come into possession of vast quantities of ready money; and provided I paid them all I owed, and a trifle more in consideration of their services, I dare say they cared very little what became of either my soul or my carcass.

In about four hours and a half I found the balloon sufficiently inflated. I attached the car, therefore, and put all my implements in it—a telescope; a barometer, with some important modifications; a thermometer; an electrometer; a compass; a magnetic needle; a seconds watch; a bell; a speaking trumpet, etc., etc., etc.—also a globe of glass exhausted of air and carefully closed with a stopper—not forgetting the condensing apparatus, some unslacked lime, a stick of sealing wax, a copious supply of water, and a large quantity of provisions, such as pemmican, in which much nutriment is contained in comparatively little bulk. I also secured in the car a pair of pigeons and a cat.

It was now nearly daybreak, and I thought it high time to take my departure. Dropping a lighted cigar on the ground, as if by accident, I took the opportunity, in stooping to pick it up, of igniting privately the piece of slow match, the end of which, as I said before, protruded a little beyond the lower rim of one of the smaller casks. This manœuvre was totally unperceived on the part of the three duns; and, jumping into the car, I immediately cut the single cord which held me to the earth, and was pleased to find that I shot upwards with inconceivable rapidity, carrying with all ease one hundred and seventy-five pounds of leaden ballast, and able to have carried up as many more. As I left the earth, the barometer stood at thirty inches, and the centigrade thermometer at 19°.

Scarcely, however, had I attained the height of fifty yards, when, roaring and rumbling up after me in the most tumultuous and terrible manner, came so dense a hurricane of fire, and gravel, and burning wood, and blazing metal, and mangled limbs, that my very heart sunk within me, and I fell down in the bottom of the car, trembling with terror. Indeed, I now perceived that I had entirely overdone the business, and that the main consequences of the shock were yet to be experienced. Accordingly, in less than a second, I felt all the blood in my body rushing to my temples, and, immediately thereupon, a concussion, which I shall never forget, burst abruptly through the night, and seemed to rip the very firmament asunder. When I afterwards had time for reflection, I did not fail to attribute the extreme violence of the explosion, as regarded myself, to its proper cause—my situation directly above it, and in the line of its greatest power. But at the time, I thought only of preserving my life. The balloon at first collapsed, then furiously expanded, then whirled round and round with sickening velocity, and finally, reeling and staggering like a drunken man, hurled me over the rim of the car, and left me dangling, at a terrific height, with my head downward, and my face outward, by a piece of slender cord about three feet in length, which hung accidentally through a crevice near the bottom of the wicker-work, and in which, as I fell my left foot became most providentially entangled. It is impossible—utterly impossible—to form any adequate idea of the horror of my situation. I gasped convulsively for breath—a shudder resembling a fit of the ague agitated every nerve and muscle in my frame—felt my eyes starting from their sockets—a horrible nausea overwhelmed me—and at length I lost all consciousness in a swoon.

How long I remained in this state it is impossible to say. It must, however, have been no inconsiderable time, for when I partially recovered the sense of existence, I found the day breaking, the balloon at a prodigious height over a wilderness of ocean, and not a trace of land to be discovered far and wide within the limits of the vast horizon. My sensations, however upon thus recovering, were by no means so replete with agony as might have been anticipated. Indeed, there was much of madness in the calm survey which I began to take of my situation. I drew up to my eyes each of my hands, one after the other, and wondered what occurence could have given rise to the swelling of the veins, and the horrible blackness of the finger nails. I afterwards carefully examined my head, shaking it repeatedly, and feeling it with minute attention, until I succeeded in satisfying myself that it was not, as I had more than half suspected, larger than my balloon. Then, in a knowing manner, I felt in both my breeches pockets, and, missing therefrom a set of tablets and a tooth-pick case, endeavored to account for their disappearance, and, not being able to do so, felt inexpressibly chagrined. It now occurred to me that I suffered great uneasiness in the joint of my left ankle, and a dim consciousness of my situation began to glimmer through my mind. But, strange to say! I was neither astonished nor horror-stricken. If I felt any emotion at all, it was a kind of chuckling satisfaction at the cleverness I was about to display in extricating myself from this dilemma; and never, for a moment, did I look upon my ultimate safety as a question susceptible of doubt. For a few minutes I remained wrapped in the profoundest meditation. I have a distinct recollection of frequently compressing my lips, putting my fore-finger to the side of my nose, and making use of other gesticulations and grimaces common to men who, at ease in their arm-chairs, meditate upon matters of intricacy or importance. Having as I thought, sufficiently collected my ideas, I now, with great caution and deliberation, put my hands behind my back and unfastened the large iron buckle which belonged to the waistband of my pantaloons. This buckle had three teeth, which, being somewhat rusty, turned with great difficulty on their axis. I brought them, however, after some trouble, at right angles to the body of the buckle, and was glad to find them remain firm in that position. Holding within my teeth the instrument thus obtained, I now proceeded to untie the knot of my cravat. I had to rest several times before I could accomplish this manœuvre; but it was at length accomplished. To one end of the cravat I then made fast the buckle, and the other end I tied, for greater security, tightly around my wrist. Drawing now my body upwards, with a prodigious exertion of muscular force, I succeeded, at the very first trial, in throwing the buckle over the car, and entangling it, as I anticipated, in the circular rim of the wicker-work.

My body was now inclined towards the side of the car, at an angle of about forty-five degrees; but it must not be understood that I was therefore only forty-five degrees below the perpendicular. So far from it, I still lay nearly level with the plane of the horizon; for the change of situation which I had acquired, had forced the bottom of the car considerably outward from my position, which was accordingly one of the most imminent peril. It should be remembered, however, that when I fell, in the first instance, from the car, if I had fallen with my face turned toward the balloon, instead of turned outwardly from it as it actually was—or if, in the second place, the cord by which I was suspended had chanced to hang over the upper edge, instead of through a crevice near the bottom of the car—I say it may readily be conceived that, in either of these supposed cases, I should have been unable to accomplish even as much as I had now accomplished, and the disclosures now made would have been utterly lost to posterity. I had therefore every reason to be grateful; although, in point of fact, I was still too stupid to be any thing at all, and hung for, perhaps, a quarter of an hour, in that extraordinary manner, without making the slightest farther exertion, and in a singular tranquil state of idiotic enjoyment. But this feeling did not fail to die rapidly away, and thereunto succeeded horror, and dismay, and a sense of utter helplessness and ruin. In fact, the blood so long accumulating in the vessels of my head and throat, and which had hitherto buoyed up my spirits with delirium, had now begun to retire within their proper channels, and the distinctness which was thus added to my perception of the danger, merely served to deprive me of the self-possession and courage to encounter it. But this weakness was, luckily for me, of no very long duration. In good time came to my rescue the spirit of despair, and, with frantic cries and struggles, I jerked my way bodily upwards, till at length, clutching with

—AND—
Bloomsburg Democrat.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1870.

☞ THE COLUMBIAN has the Largest Circulation of any paper published in Northern Pennsylvania, and is also a much larger sheet than any of its cotemporaries; and is therefore the best medium for advertising in this section of the State.

The New Year.

In entering upon our Fourth Volume we cannot refrain from thanking our readers and patrons for their generous support and continued patronage. We believe that we have redeemed our pledge to establish in this County a first-class family newspaper—one that would be supported at home, and respected abroad. Money has been lavishly expended to make the office the most complete in the State in every respect, and we believe that we have succeeded in making it the most thoroughly equipped printing establishment outside of Philadelphia.

In buying the Columbia Democrat and consolidating it with THE COLUMBIAN, we not only added to our patronage, but relieved the party from the support of two newspapers at the County seat, and removed what had heretofore been a source of discord in our midst. Our enterprise has been justified; for whatever division of sentiment there may have been among our people as to local candidates last fall, all will admit that as between them THE COLUMBIAN preserved a strict impartiality. As a result, peace and harmony exist in our ranks, old divisions are forgotten, and we trust never will be revived.

In the future, as in the past, we shall bestow a large amount of editorial labor upon the paper. All subjects of interest will be fully and fairly treated. It is neither our expectation nor purpose to "please all men." In an age like this, when every man reads more or less, it would be impossible to give opinions which would coincide with the views of all, but while speaking freely on the topics of the day, we shall do so with a due regard to the opinions of others.

Our Court, General and Local news columns will be as full as usual. In fact, we shall endeavor to make THE COLUMBIAN an epitome of the week's proceedings, and valuable for reference as well as for its news and general literature.

Those of our friends who do not get a county paper should subscribe at once. Not only should it be taken for its general and local news, but to aid in circulating and building up the principles we all profess. Do not be content with taking a copy yourself, but get your neighbor to subscribe, and thus you will do him good, and render a service to the party and to us.

Hoping that 1870 will witness the return of the Democracy to power, the re-establishment of the Union, and prosperity throughout our entire land, we wish our patrons one and all "A HAPPY NEW YEAR."

Radical Fraud.

IN another column we print an articlel from a well known Radical newspaper of Philadelphia, The Sunday Dispatch, relative to the frauds perpetrated in the First Senatorial District, which resulted in the certificate of election being given to Watt, Republican, in utter disregard of the legal election of Diamond Democrat.

We ask for this article, a careful and earnest perusal. The subject is one of the utmost importance, and calls for prompt and decisive condemnation by the people. It has been the policy of the Radicals in Congress to award contested seats to members of their own party in defiance of the requirements of justice and right, and the outrage will doubtless be attempted in our State Legislature.

No tampering with the purity of the ballot box should be allowed, and no free men who will tamely submit to the infamous transaction are worthy of that name.

Judge Allison (Radical) declares the return to be a false one, but that he can afford no remedy as the case has gone beyond his jurisdiction. There can be no doubt that the so-called election of Watt is a fraud and an outrage, when both prominent men and journals of the Republican party unite in condemning it.

MR. BOUTWELL says we must fund, and let specie payments bide their time. But taxation must not be relaxed, nor must a dollar come off the revenues. In this immense financial view the President tractably concurs. But there must be a natural order about these matters. Is funding the public debt of the first importance? And, in any case, can it be accomplished before we have resumption? Of course not. And resumption, wished for by all, because it will make present incomes go from twenty to forty per cent. further, is out of the question so long as these manacles are kept on enterprise and industry by excessive taxation. Our very first want, then, is to get relief from this oppressive burden of taxes. It is a cancer, eating our lives out. After the workingmen have paid over such a per cent. of their earnings for the necessaries of life, and such an additional per cent. for taxes,—for it is to be remembered that labor finally pays the taxes,—very little, if anything, is left to apply to the higher social needs, saying nothing of encouragement to a spirit of enterprise. Our first point in finance, then, is to secure a very large and permanent reduction of the taxes, which were laid on a war basis, and have no business to intrude into a time of peace.

GEN. GEORGE B. MCCLELLAN called, on the 31st ult., on the President, Secretary of War, and General Sherman, and was cordially received by each of them. He was accompanied by his father-in-law, General Marcy.

THE CLUB MEETINGS OF 1863.

One of the principal charges made against our citizens in the trials at Harrisburg, was that they had organized a secret organization or society to resist the draft. This charge (which was entirely false) appeared in all the cases tried and was contained in the printed form of accusation used by the Judge Advocate. Names and dates were filled in the printed form, in each case, but the substance of the accusation was the same in all the cases, and convictions upon it were had. The form of the accusation as it appeared in the charges and specifications against Stott E. Colley, one of the prisoners, was literally as follows:—

Specification:—"In this, that he the said Stott E. Colley, a citizen of Columbia county, Pennsylvania, did unite confederate and combine with John Rantz, Rohr M'Henry and many other disloyal persons whose names are unknown, and form or unite with a society or organization commonly known and called by the name of the "Knights of the Golden Circle," the object of which society or organization was and is to resist the execution of the draft, and prevent persons who have been drafted under the provisions of the said act of Congress, approved March 3d, 1863, and the several supplements thereto, from entering the military service of the United States. This done at or near Benton township, Columbia county, Pennsylvania, on or about August 14th, 1864, and at divers times and places before and after said mentioned day."

There are three averments in denial of this charge which were established beyond dispute by the evidence and which we shall now state and sustain.

1. That the (so-called) 'secret meetings,' referred to in this charge, were held in the spring of 1863 and none later than about the month of May of that year; consequently that they were held nearly one year and a half before the arrests were made at the end of August 1864.

2. That they were political clubs simply, and had no unlawful or improper object; and particularly that they were not intended, nor organized and conducted, to oppose the conscription laws of the United States.

3. That they were not called or known, during their existence by the name of "Knights of the Golden Circle," nor was any such name ever assigned to them in any quarter until the time of the trials or shortly before.

Reserving the main body of the evidence in support of these points until our next number, we will now only cite the testimony of three witnesses examined in the Rantz trial.

David Savage, sworn:—I am a member of those secret Associations. The only secret about them was the password. We were sworn to support the constitution of the United States and of Pennsylvania, and the laws. There was no organization to resist the draft. Almost all the persons belonging to this Association subscribed money to pay bounties, &c. The Associations were purely political. Rantz said to me he had been in to see the soldiers, and told them they could hunt up all the drafted men and arrest them, and they would not be disturbed.

Nicholas Kindt, sworn:—I was a member of these Associations. They ceased last May a year I think. The password was the only secret in it. The obligation was to support the constitution of the United States and of Pennsylvania and the laws according thereto. There was no organization to resist the draft.

Martin Ammerman, sworn:—I was a member of these Associations. They ceased last spring a year. The oath was as stated by the last witness. There was no organization to resist the draft. The only secret was the sign of recognition. Never heard these organizations called Knights of the Golden Circle, till lately, and that by outsiders.

NOT until we had freedmen was it ever thought of that poor men could walk up to the Treasury and take out a hundred dollars apiece to help them along in the world. That is the proposition now before Congress. The landless people of the South are to have two millions of dollars set apart for them, to assist them in purchasing and stocking small farms, and getting together needful agricultural implements. Allowing one hundred dollars apiece, that sum will just go around among twenty thousand persons. What is that out of a population of say eleven millions of souls? The very proposal suggests jobbery on its face. The men who take one hundred dollars this year would be sure to want another hundred next year, and we should be breeding, through the Treasury, a race of public paupers. Not after this fashion did our sturdy white pioneers go out into the wilderness of the West with their families, to encounter untold hardships in subduing it. Can there be any reason why Government should set up one class of men as farmers more than another? or be more tender of the sufferings of one class of poor men than another? It is enough that all who are willing to work can conquer fortune for themselves if the real stuff is in them. If it is not, one hundred dollars is not enough money to put it there.

THE COLUMBIAN.—Each mail brings us flattering letters from subscribers at home or abroad. We seldom print these, but cannot refrain from giving the following commendatory notice from an old subscriber in Bradford County:

"THE COLUMBIAN is an old and well tried friend. Its weekly visits have been looked for with great anxiety, anticipating the pleasure it would afford us. I have found many agreeable acquaintances in Bloomsburg, and when I received the COLUMBIAN I almost invariably, through that, heard from some of those friends. The people of Columbia County should feel proud of so reliable an advocate. All lovers of truth, of country, and of good sound Democratic principles, will admire the COLUMBIAN. Long may it wave.

Most respectfully yours,
C. H. AMES.

THE MOBILE WEEKLY REGISTER—a very large journal of twelve pages, well and carefully edited, has been received by us, and offers satisfactory evidence of the ability of the South to publish a first-class newspaper.

The Register is not a new paper, but has been published for many years, and its continued existence proves that it meets with a generous support.

Trumbull's Judiciary Bill.

The bill reported in the United States Senate on Thursday, by Judge Trumbull, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, defining the jurisdiction of the Courts of the United States, strikes us as a very strange document for him to present, or for the Senate seriously to consider. It declares that "no civil State Government exists in Virginia or Texas, and no so-called civil State Government in either of said States shall be recognized as a valid or legal State Government, either by the Executive or the judicial power and authority of the United States, until Congress shall provide." etc.; and it declares that "the act of Congress, entitled 'an act to provide for the more efficient government of the Rebel States,' passed March 2, 1867, and the several acts supplementary thereto, are political in their character, the propriety or validity of which no judicial tribunal is competent to question, and the Supreme Court of the United States is hereby prohibited from entertaining jurisdiction of any case growing out of the execution of said acts, in either of said States, until the Senators and Representatives from such States shall be admitted into the Congress of the United States, or Congress shall recognize such State Government as valid; and, meanwhile, all acts or parts of acts authorizing an appeal, writ of error, habeas corpus, or other proceeding to bring before said Supreme Court for review, any case, civil or criminal, or other proceeding arising out of the execution of said act, and the acts supplementary thereto, or which authorize an appeal in any case from the judgment of the Circuit Court of the United States in a habeas corpus case or proceeding, be and the same are hereby suspended," * * * "and the President is hereby directed to hold and proceed with all the prisoners held in said States by military authority without regard to any civil proceeding or authority whatsoever!"

These words have a strange sound in time of peace. This act, if it become a law, will blot out civil law in the States named, and place all power in the hands of the military; unless, by implication, it permits the Circuit Courts of the United States to exercise jurisdiction therein. But, if this is allowed, no appeal can be taken to the Supreme Court, to which they are subordinate. If it permits Circuit Courts to settle anything, as would seem to be its intent, it makes their decision final, by preventing an appeal. At all events, it annihilates the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the United States so far as Virginia and Texas are concerned (why Mississippi is not included we cannot imagine,) and gives the military full sway, if we may take the concluding words of the bill as declaratory of its meaning and character. "The President is hereby directed to hold, and proceed with all prisoners held in said States, by military authority, without regard to any civil proceeding or authority whatsoever."

This bill places Virginia and Texas even below the Territories, for in the latter the civil power rules; and the people have the privilege of appealing to the United States Supreme Court. Why the civil power should thus be placed in such complete subordination to the military in Virginia and Texas, we cannot determine. We had supposed that the war was over, and that it was not deemed necessary nor expedient to suspend the privilege of habeas corpus in time of peace, especially to prevent an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States. If this bill aimed at the Courts of the States named, we could understand, and perhaps approve it; but we cannot understand why the legitimate jurisdiction of the United States Supreme Court over territory subject to the Government of the United States should be curtailed as this bill contemplates. Is that Court—the highest judicial tribunal in the land—no longer worthy of confidence? Is it necessary to blot out one of the three branches of the Federal Government in order to preserve order and administer justice in any part of the territory of the United States?

We shall look with some anxiety and curiosity to the action of the Senate on this remarkable bill, and for Judge Trumbull's explanation of the object of the Judiciary Committee in reporting it. At present we confess to our ignorance of any good reason for the passage of such a bill. It is plainly inconsistent with the President's position in his Message relative to Virginia. Why pass such a law for that State, if Congress intend to act favorably on the President's recommendation and re-admit Virginia within a few days, as it is hoped and believed they will?—The Day.

Frauds among the Return Judges.

It can scarcely be questioned, by any one who looks carefully at the returns of the election last week, that fraud has been resorted to in the Board of Return Judges in order to give the certificate of election to the Senate from the First district to Wm. W. Watt. The district is composed of the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Seventh, Eighth, and Twenty-sixth wards. The return is: For Watt, Republican, 13,016; for Diamond, Democrat, 12,840. In the same wards Geary had 12,723 votes or 293 less than are given to Watt; while Packer had 13,247, or 407 more than are awarded to Diamond. Williams had 12,834 votes, or 182 less than are given to Watt; whilst Pershing had 13,143, or 303 more than are given to Diamond. Now, is there any reason why Watt should be more popular than Geary or Williams, or that Diamond should be more unpopular than Packer or Pershing? The presumption is that the vote of neither of these Senatorial candidates was governed by personal considerations, but was purely political. There is no reason why Mr. Watt should run ahead of his ticket, nor that Mr. Diamond should lag behind. The whole thing has a suspicious look, and justifies the belief that the return is a gross fraud.

A similar outrage was attempted in the legislative return for the Thirteenth district. The return judge, who must have profited by the knowledge of the means by which the Byerly frauds were perpetrated some years ago, took his returns to his residence and placed them in a book-case, from which they mysteriously disappeared before the next morning. Officers of election usually have good memories as to the very few figures required in a general return, but this one had not. With his certificate he lost his recollection. He was compelled to resort to the return filed in the Prothonotary's office, and, by a most remarkable fatality, that return had been tampered with and the figures altered, the innocent return judge not being aware of the remarkable change in the result, which elected a candidate whom he must have known was defeated; and, being unable to notice the palpable alteration in the figures, he copied off the mutilated return as he found it. The result would have been to certify that Mr. Geisz, Republican, was elected to the Legislature instead of Mr. Forsyth, who had the majority. No one with common sense will believe that the election officer was ignorant of the fact that Geisz was defeated. In that case, by prompt action, the fraud was prevented, and Mr. Forsyth received his certificate. One of the effects of the Registry law, we were told, would be to create an honest class of election officers, appointed by the Board of Aldermen. In no case heretofore in this city have there been such glaring attempts at fraud as have been made in the hope of unseating Diamond and Forsyth. If these are the blessings of the new system, the sooner we return to the old plan the better.—"Sunday Dispatch," (Radical.)

LERAYSVILLE, PA.
Dec. 22d, 1869.

DEAR EDITOR.—The good people of Bradford are now rejoicing in some very fine sleighing and the prospect seems to be that the old year will depart amid the merry chime of sleigh bells. This afternoon, being seated by a grate of glowing authracite with the last COLUMBIAN and a choice cigar for companions, I feel sociable and would fain have a talk with you, as I silently watch the cloud wreaths which curl so gracefully upward and form fantastic shapes and figures around my head. As I sit here, memory, that ever present talisman carries one back to the beginning of the year and the many familiar faces which greeted me then, since "gone to that bourne from whence no traveler returns." We shall soon bid the swift waning year a long farewell and bury it in the dead past, but yet it will contain a history for each of the many who have been actors on the stage during its eventful march. How many fortunes have been made and lost, how much of joy and grief, happiness and misery, have been crowded into the short space of one year! Soon will the old year die. Let us profit by the experience we have gained, and resolve as we continue the new year and the new decade to cultivate that good feeling so essential to happiness and peace. The last ten years have been, in this country, devoted to strife and turmoil, let us hope that the succeeding ten may be given to repairing our wasted energies and restoring the country to her full measure of power and greatness.

Items of moment here are somewhat scarce and nearly all the interest seems to be centered in the action of Congress concerning the resumption of specie payment, and the currency. The new Rail Road is in full and successful operation, and our merchants are daily receiving and forwarding a large amount of goods and produce, over the much needed improvement. The Congressional campaign of 1870 is even now being discussed somewhat and chances of candidates upon both sides are freely canvassed by both parties. From any standpoint, knowing the bravery and pluck of old Columbia, I should say the Democracy have a good prospect of success before them. Radicalism in Bradford is very evidently on the wane and nothing but the offices to be got from the Administration and the county office hunters hold the concern together.

Wishing the many readers of your paper a "Merry Christmas" and "happy New Year."

I am Yours,

CONYNGHAM TWP. Jan. 1, 1870.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN—Dear Sir:—Your readers no doubt are anxious to know the result of our Fair here for the benefit of the R. C. Church under the auspices of our exemplary, talented and energetic Pastor the Rev. D. J. M'Dermott.

The Gold Headed Cane contested so warmly by Esquires Thornton of Dark Corner and Kealey of Centralia was awarded to the former by a majority of 456 votes, the whole vote being 2864. It realized $716. This contest created quite a sensation in the neighborhood, the friends of both being earnestly at work. The Caned Justice of the Dark Corner labored under the disadvantage of being in ill health at the beginning of the canvass, yet he returned $114 more than his opponent.

The mysterious Clock second only to that far-famed one in Strasburg on the Rhine contested by Messrs. Gorrell, Goodridge and Freck, was given to Mr. Gorrell by a majority of 500 votes.

The next article canvassed for, was Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, by the teachers of the parish. Mr. Jeremiah O'Conner, the donor, was the happy recipient by a majority of 479 votes.

A splendid French Gold-burnished China tea set donated by Esquire Thornton was won by Mrs. Thomas Geraty, although she had five prominent opponents, but like all good workers you must rise early and work late to beat her.

It was twenty-five cents a vote for each of the above articles except the Dictionary which was ten cents. Among the many articles drawn by chances, Mr. Patrick Kennedy drew a gold watch and chain and Miss Cook a large mirror.

The proceeds of the Fair have not yet been ascertained but will probably reach $3500 clear of expenses, so you see it was quite a success.

Our gratitude and heart-felt thanks are due to the other Religious Denominations for their liberal contributions on this as well as other occasions for the erection of this edifice. May the Dispenser of all good reward them, is the prayer of

Yours Respectfully,

Pennsylvania Legislature.

HARRISBURG, January 2.—An informal caucus of the Republican members of the House was held at 8 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at which forty-one of the sixty Republicans were present.—Mr. Ames, of Crawford, presided, and Mr. Bunn, of Philadelphia, was secretary.

A committee of seven, with Mr. Adaire, of Philadelphia, as chairman, was appointed to prepare a list of officers for the House, in accordance with the law of 1868, which reduces the number to thirty-four. The list, when prepared, will be submitted to a formal caucus, to be held on Monday afternoon.

On motion of Mr. Hong, of Philadelphia, Hon. B. F. Strang, of Tioga, was chosen as the candidate for Speaker, and as more than two-thirds of the Republican members were in the caucus which made this nomination, it may be regarded as conclusive that he will be elected.

The contest for State Treasurer has grown more animated, from the report that one candidate (Mr. Mackey) is supported by the friends of a prominent banking interest, and that the other (Mr. Irwin) is favored by several of the largest mercantile and oil interests in the western part of the State.—The reports derive color from the presence at Harrisburg of bankers, merchants and oil operators. The caucus nomination for State Treasurer is usually made the same week as the organization.

Col. D. B. McCreary has resigned the position of Adjutant General of Pennsylvania to take his seat as a Representative in the Legislature from Erie.—Col. A. L. Russell will probably be appointed Adjutant General.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 4th.

SENATE.—At three P. M. the Senate met and was called to order by Speaker Stinson, after which a resolution was adopted referring to a committee the claims of the contestants for the seat from the Twentieth district. Chas. H Stinson was then elected Speaker, and George Hammersly chief clerk. The Democrats voted for Wm. M. Randall, of Schuylkill, except Senator Brown, who was Randall's caucus opponent for Speaker, and Buckalew, who voted for Brown of Northampton. He stated that he did so by instruction of his district conference.

Mr. Randall, the Democratic candidate for Speaker, said that he had not expected to receive the vote of Mr. Buckalew; he had not looked for the vote of any renegade.

Mr. Buckalew said that it was unnecessary to respond to such an observation coming from such a source.

A petition was presented contesting the seat of Watt. A resolution amending the State constitution by making the State Treasurer elective by the qualified voters was offered by Mr. Buckalew, was laid on the table.

HOUSE—The House met at noon, and was called to order by the chief clerk, Selfridge. The returns of the election of members were then presented and read, after which B. B. Strang was elected Speaker, and General Selfridge re-elected chief clerk. Petitions were then presented, contesting the seats of John F. Mooney, and John Forsyth. Adjourned.

Mining Dangers.

PLYMOUTH, Dec. 31.—There was nearly a repetition of the Avondale horror at this place yesterday. At about 10:30 A. M. the breaker of the Nottingham mine, situated at the southern end of the town, was discovered to be on fire. There were fifty-five men in the mine at the time, which is one of the man-traps, like the Avondale—one with but one outlet—yet, notwithstanding this, no notice was given to the men below that the building above was on fire. Fortunately, it was discovered soon after it broke out, and, with great exertion, was not only prevented from spreading, but was extinguished, the men below remaining all the while in ignorance of their danger. The fire was the result of gross carelessness on the part of the company working it. It appears that two stoves were kept in the breaker to give heat to the boys employed there to pick out the slate from the coal as it goes in the breaker, and the pipes from these stoves were run directly through the woodwork of the building, without any protection. The result was what any sane man might have expected. The woodwork heated until it became of the consistency of tinder, and then ignited. At noon some of the men came up to dinner, and, although every exertion was made to keep the fire from their knowledge, the fact leaked out and they became aware for the first time of the terrible fate they had escaped. When they went down again they informed the rest of the men in the mine, and they at once got together and held an indignation meeting, and resolved at once to go up out of the mine. When they got up they assembled the rest of the men belonging to the mine—in all about seventy-five—and held another meeting, resolving that they would not again go down into the mine until there were built two brick chimneys for the stovepipes, a watchman placed in the building night and day, and a bell at the bottom of the shaft, so that they should have a signal when there was danger at the surface. Since that time the mine has not been worked, and the men still remain firm. The proprietors Messrs. Thomas Brodrick & Co., not being able to get any men to supply the places of their old hands, have yielded to their demands so far as the two chimneys are concerned, and their construction has commenced; but they think one watchman in the night is sufficient, and decline to place one there in the day time. The men say that this only shows a willingness to protect their own property, and as their lives are exposed in the day time they say they shall insist on the two watchmen and also on the alarm bell.

STRENGTH OF SPIDER SILK.—It may surprise some of our readers to learn that while a bar of iron, one inch in diameter, will sustain twenty-eight tons, and a bar of steel, of the same size, will sustain fifty tons, a bar of spider's silk of the same dimensions, will sustain seventy-four tons. This is based upon a calculation that a fibre of silk one four thousandth of an inch in diameter, will sustain fifty-four grains.

—Moscow has the largest bells in the world—one weighing two hundred and fifty tons; the other one hundred and forty-one thousand pounds.

—The loss of frozen apples in Michigan, during the recent cold weather, is estimated at 1,000,000 bushels.

—College students have a legend of a mechanical and perhaps sleepy parson, at morning prayers, who prayed that "the inefficient may be made efficient, the intemperate temperate, and the industrious dustrious."

—Every carpet-bagger who is obliged to flee from the South to escape the penitentiary for some such crime as theft or rape, comes North with a story that he was driven away from the South by the Ku-Klux-Klan.

—Danville has a $40,000 steam hammer. Its machinery is so nicely adjusted that an egg can be cracked and the kernel taken out whole, or a solid cannon ball can be crushed with a blow of sixty tons.

—An Omaha husband revenged himself upon the man who stole his wife's affections by getting a divorce and then compelling the lover to marry the woman at the muzzle of a pistol. Verdict —"Served him right."

The Columbian.

omsburg, Pa., Friday, Jan. 7, 1870

ANY of our farmers were busy ughing last week.

VE publish in an other column, an icle on Senator Trumbull's Judiciary , the importance of which deserves ful attention, with which we trust ill be read.

VE are authorized by Mr. Mauger to that the statement in the Republican o his having sold out his interest in Forks Hotel, is untrue. It is for however.

HE warm rainy weather of the past k has been productive of more ill- and death. Colds are prevalent to alarming degree. Cold weather is atly to be desired.

ENATOR BUCKALEW went to Harris- g on Monday last to attend the ses- s of the Legislature which is now ession. His family will also remove Harrisburg during the winter.

N the first inst. Millard F. Conner duated as a jour at this office, having ved a three years' apprenticeship. has been an honest, faithful work- n, and we are sorry to lose him from establishment.

OSH BILLINGS says, "Any business n that hasn't got sand enough in its w to expend a few dollars in making business known to 3,000 or 4,000 peo- ought to pick up and go peddling nuts."

POSTAGE STAMPS.—Persons using tage stamps will do well to look e at them after being placed on the ers, as the mucilage used on them inte is so poor as to barely hold and quently fails to do so.

OHN KRESSLER, a farmer of Scott nship, Columbia County, Pa., states t, on New Year's eve, one of his eding sows presented him with a er of pigs numbering twenty-one, ich are thriving well.

HE County Commissioners have de the following appointments for year 1870: Commissioners' Clerk, m. Krickbaum; Commissioners' At- ney, John G. Freeze; Mercantile praiser, Noah Mouser.

Miss Julia C. Addington has been cted Superintendent of Common hools for Mitchell county, Iowa, and Attorney General of that State de- s that she has a perfect right to per- m the duties of the office, and to lect pay for her services.

OUR neighbor publishes what pur- rts to be a list of the officers of Colum- County. It is correct except that mes Kester is not Associate Judge, r Jesse Coleman Prothonotary, nor hn Freeze Register and Recorder, nor ntgomery Cole County Commission- nor B. P. Fortner Collector.

OUR genial friend, David Lowenberg, s duly installed as Treasurer of this unty on Wednesday last. He will ove an efficient, accommodating offi- . His predecessor, Mr. Yohe, filled office creditably, and retires with e confidence and good wishes of his low citizens.

N effort will be made this winter, are informed, to get a Turnpike mpany incorporated, whose road will tend from Ashland to Numedia.— is will not only give us a much bet- road over the two mountains, but terially lessen Conyngham's taxa- n.

THE carrier of the COLUMBIAN de- es to return his thanks for the gener- s responses of his patrons on New ar's day. They have fulfilled the pe expressed in last week's paper; face having visibly increased in dth from repeated smiles; and his cket book having attained most cor- dent dimensions.

IRE.—On last Saturday night about dnight a bright light was seen in the ection of Danville. Subsequent in- ry shows that several buildings on d near the corner of Mill and honing Streets took fire and burned the ground. They were old wooden uctures, occupied as stores &c. The s is mainly in their contents, which re partially covered by insurrnce.

TILL AT IT.—The turkey thieves ve not yet ceased their depredations on the coops of this town, as we hear new cases occurring lately. We uld enjoy greatly the capture and nishment of one of these rascals, who, s to be hoped, would meet with treat- nt severe enough to deter others from ir illegal practices.

THE Columbian, about two months , boasted of having a circulation of 0. Last week it claimed 2200.—Re- ublican.

We still not only claim 2500 circula- n, but can show it from our books. We d we had 2200 in this County. We ve 300 subscribers outside of it. What the actual number of your subscri- rs, Doctor?

CELESTIAL PHENOMENA.—This year re will be six eclipses; four of the n and two of the moon, viz: a tota lipse of the moon, January 17; a par- l eclipse of the sun, January 30, in- ible here; a partial eclipse of the sun ne 28, visible only in Australia; a al eclipse of the moon, July 12; a par- l eclipse of the sun July 27, invisible re; a total eclipse of the sun Decem- r 21, visible in Europe and Canada. enus will be the evening star until bruary 20, morning star until Dec. 23, d evening star the rest of the year.

AS THE day for the meeting of the gislature approaches it seems to be ceded that the thieves are to have logs all their own way this winter. e ring will elect all its candidates, d the State will be delivered up to e tender mercies of the roosters and nchers. The Radical majority will responsible for the organization. Let be seen to, that any Democrat who ns in the schemes of the ring is mptly exposed, personally and by me.

WE have received a valuable book titled "Woman; Her Rights, Wrongs, rivileges and Responsibilities." The sition of woman socially and intel- ctually in England, France and the ited States is considered in all its tails. The question of Woman Suf- age, its folly and inexpediency, is ly discussed, and deserves the atten- on of all men and such women as are onoring for political rights. The hole question of woman's relations to an, and to the world, is carefully gone er by the author, L. P. Brockett, M. , in a manner which evidences re- arch and study. Published by L. ebbins, Hartford, Conn. For sale only y Agents.

DEDICATION.—On Tuesday last Cal- net Lodge I. O. O. F. dedicated their ew Hall at Danville, opposite Water- an & Beaver's store. After the dedi- tory services, the Lodge and visiting rethren marched in procession to the utheran Church, where the Daugh- rs of Rebecca, through Capt. C. B. rockway, presented a magnificent Bi- le to the Lodge. The address was re- ponded to by P. G. M. Watson, of oglestown. The same gentlemen de- vered addresses in the evening in the ew Hall. It is beautifully furnished, nd the members of Calumet have rea- on to be proud of it.

THE Republican waxes wroth because advertisers publish their business in this sheet in preference to his. It is not to be wondered at when it is considered that THE COLUMBIAN reaches nearly double the number of people our cotem- porary does.

After publishing Mr. Hurley's will in disregard of the known wishes of his friends and connections, the editor com- plains because the Executor's notice was not given him, and alleges that "Mr. Hurley in his lifetime usually did his business through that office." This is notoriously untrue, as the re- cords will show. Mr. Hurley invaria- bly when he could control it, transacted his business "through this office."

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.—On Monday of last week St. John's Lodge, No. 263, at their regular meeting elected the fol- lowing officers for the ensuing term:

Chancellor,	M. P. Lutz,
Vice "	K. C. Ent,
Banker,	C. B. Brockway,
Recording Scribe,	R. H. Ringler,
Financial "	Dr. J. C. Ratter,
Guide,	Jos. Townsend,
Outer Steward,	Richard Edwards,
Inner "	H. C. Grotz.

Trustees, Thos. Geddes, C. B. Brock- way, M. P. Lutz.

The officers elect were duly installed on last Monday evening.

NEW YEAR'S PRESENTS.—The resi- dents near Briarcreek Station on the L. & B. R. R. presented David T. Bound, Superintendent, on New Year's day with a fine turkey weighing 20½ lbs. Messrs. Garrison and Hughes, Conductors, were each made the recipient of a fine tur- key. A bushel of walnuts were also given to the firemen and brakesmen of the road. Will any other Stations on the road do likewise?

A FARMER OF BRIARCREEK.

LAST NOTICE.—All who are indebted to me on subscription to the STAR AND DEMOCRAT will call at the Register's office and settle the same by the 16th of February next, and thereby save costs. My book accounts must and shall be settled up. I mean business.

Jan. 7, 1870.-2t W. H. JACOBY.

RUNAWAY.—On Wednesday after- noon last, a span of horses belonging to Mr. John Robinson of Espy, whilst standing in front of Exchange Block, became frightened at a passing team and ran furiously through Main Street and up to Espy. Strange to say neither horses nor carriage were greatly injured, although the roads were in a fearfully rough and frozen condition. Fortun- ately no one was in the carriage.

RANDALL OF SCHUYLKILL.—This Senator, whose name was quite notori- ous during our late Senatorial contest, received the Democratic caucus nomi- nation for Speaker at Harrisburg on Tuesday last. Mr. Brown of Northamp- ton and Mr. Buckalew declined voting for him. Mr. Buckalew was instructed not to do so by the Conferees who nom- inated him, because of Randall's un- warrantable and corrupt interference in the business of the Conference.

THE County Auditors had a very easy time of the settlement of the finances for the last year. Barely two days work. The plain and careful manner in which Mr. Krickbaum had kept the accounts, made it an easy matter to compare re- ceipts, orders and vouchers, everything balancing up. Indeed no more pains- taking and careful accountant has ever had the charge of the books, and his retention is a compliment to an efficient and competent clerk. The balance found due was promptly paid over by Mr. Yohe, and Mr. Lowenberg is now in charge of the finances.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—I hereby ac- knowledge the receipt of articles, in a "Donation Visit" from the friends of the undersigned. The whole amounted to $160.00.

Among the articles received, were three quilts, a studying gown, buffalo robe, two pairs of boots, oats and corn for beast, flour, meat, potatoes and but- ter for man, &c., for all of which the kind donors have my hearty thanks and best wishes for their temporal and spiritual welfare. Thank you, kind friends, for kindness. May He, who possesses all riches, bless you abundant- ly. J. M. RICE.

*Below Zero.

The aggregate heat of the month of August, during '67, '68, and '69 is 1914°, while that of July during the same three years, appears from this table, to be 1951°, four and one quarter degrees difference. Three successive years being a sufficient criterion, it seems that the adage consid- ering August the warmest month of the year in our latitude, is nearly, but not pre- cisely correct. H. Z

THE ONLY RELIABLE CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA IN THE KNOWN WORLD.

Dr. Wishart's Great American Dyspepsia Pills and Pine Tree Tar Cordial are a positive and in- fallible cure for dyspepsia in its most aggravated form, and no matter of how long standing.

They penetrate the secret abode of this terrible disease, and exterminate it, root and branch, forever.

They alleviate more agony and silent suffering than tongue can tell.

They are noted for curing the most desperate and hopeless cases, when every known means fail to afford relief.

No form of dyspepsia or indigestion can resist their penetrating power.

DR. WISHART'S PINE TREE TAR CORDIAL

It is the vital principle of the Pine Tree, ob- tained by a peculiar process in the distillation of the tar, by which its highest medical properties are retained. It invigorates the digestive organs and restores the appetite. It strengthens the de- bilitated system. It purifies and enriches the blood, and expels from the system the corruption which scrofula breeds on the lungs. It dissolves the mucus or phlegm which stops the air pas- ges of the lungs. Its healing principle acts upon the irritated surface of the lungs and throat, pen- etrating to each diseased part, relieving pain and subduing inflammation. It is the result of years of study and experiment, and it is offered to the afflicted with positive assurance of its power to cure the following diseases, if the patient has not too long delayed a resort to the means of cure:— Consumption of the Lungs, Cough, Sore Throat, and Bread, Bronchitis, Liver Complaint, Blind and Bleeding Piles, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Diptheria, &c.

A medical expert, holding honorable collegiate diploma s, devotes his entire time to the examin- ation of patients at the office parlors. Associated with him are three consulting physicians of ac- knowledged eminence, whose services are given to the public FREE OF CHARGE.

This opportunity is offered by no other insti- tution in the country.

Letters from any part of the country, asking advice, will be promptly and gratuitously res- ponded to. Where convenient, remittances should take the shape of

This great remedy has been in use, and has indeed effected some of the most mar- velous cures ever recorded in the annals of historical medicine. Such being the case in addition to its former renown in Co- lumbia Territory we defy humanity to dispute the fact that this Great Shoshonees Remedy is the remedy of remedies of the 19th Century, and the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffer- ing humanity.

ACTUAL CURE OF SCROFULA AND CON- SUMPTION, BY THE GREAT SHOSHONEES REMEDY.

Geneva, N. Y., 1869.

DR. YOUNG & BRO.—I desire to inform you that the marvelous effects of the Great Shoshonees Remedy in our family have been greater than any one could have expected. My daughter was afflicted with Scrofulous Consumption, and had an open Scrofulous Ulcer on the neck, she had a bad Cough, Pain in the Lung and severe Night Sweats. She expectorated much Mucous and Blood, had no appetite, and was greatly exhaust- ed. She was not able to get out even to church for more than a year. She was attended by phy- sicians, and took Cod Liver Oil for nearly two years, but without benefit. Our family doctor at last stated that recovery was out of the ques- tion, and that all he could do was to relieve her sufferings; we fully expected her death, but were providentially led to try a bottle of the Great Shoshonees Remedy, and, the effects being so marked, we of course continued its use; She has taken six bottles, and the Ulcer on the neck, the Expectoration of Blood, Night Sweats, Cough, Debility, &c., have all disappeared, and strange to say she has actually quite recovered her former health.

My niece from Elmira is also taking the Reme- dy for Dyspepsia with good Results. The dis- covery of such a Remedy is what has been long needed.

With Grateful Regards, MRS. B. F. STAGG.

MARK THE TESTIMONY OF THE REV. DR. RANKINE.

I am well acquainted with Mrs. Stagg, and her daughter, to whom used The Shoshonees Remedy, and can testify in the fullest manner to their high standing, and to the reliableness of their testimony. JAMES RANKINE,

Rector of St. Peter's Church Geneva, N. Y.

Ten Years in Rome

FARMER'S COLUMN.

How to Make Compost.

Making compost is in order at any season of the year when the ground is not frozen, and almost every farm has some of the material to make it of. Any spot of ground that cannot be cultivated, whether dry upland or swamp bottom, may be dug up and carted to some convenient place, to form a compost heap. This place had better be selected near to the material, which will expedite the work. Any kind of soil or subsoil will do, except very stiff clay, or very coarse sand; and even a small proportion of these will not be objectionable. Swamp mud or the deposit in river bottoms is preferable to all others.

This should be put in a sort of winrow, three or four feet deep, and about half a bushel of lime to every one-horse cart-load of mud or soil to be mixed with it. An addition of a half peck of plaster, would be an improvement.

But if neither lime nor plaster can be obtained, don't give it up; the other materials are worth operating on. Let them lay to be acted on by the frost, rain and sunshine, for six months or a year, and in that time turn the mass over with a shovel, beginning at one end of the heap, mixing well and breaking the lumps, leting the air through it.

Spread it over your grass land in the fall, winter or spring, and you will be surprised at the improvement of the crop.

Labor spent in making compost will pay better than money spent in purchasing most of the phosphates in the market. Do not be afraid of making too much. Have hundreds or thousands of cart loads to put on your grass land every year. If you can raise good crops of grass, you will soon be able to raise good crops of grain. The grass will feed stock; the stock will make manure; then you are all right.—Am. Stock Journal.

Ground Hay for Cattle Feed.

Joseph S. Kirk, of Pittsburgh, Pa., writes to the N. Y. Farmers' Club as follows:

"For some time past I have been making observations and experiments in animal's food, and obtaining what I believe to be an improvement, and I take the liberty of communicating to your club the results. Grass being the natural food for live stock, it is easily and properly masticated, and as a consequence its nutrition easily extracted.

With hay, however, the case is different, for when fed in sufficient quantities the animal, especially if its teeth have become flattened by age, attempts to satisfy itself by selecting the leaves and tender branches. To obviate this difficulty, and prevent waste, cutting hay in short lengths has to an extent become general, and is, no doubt, a step in the right direction. My belief is that we should go still further, and grind the hay as we now grind oats and corn. It is thought that owing to its glutinous nature hay could not be reduced to a state of meal, or, if so reduced, the expense attending would not justify. To test this, I constructed a cutter and crusher on new principles, and the result was beyond my most sanguine expectations. Ten tons a day can be ground with one machine, at a cost not to exceed one dollar per ton. Ground in this manner hay is not unlike ground oats, save in color, its weight being from 32 to 36 pounds per bushel. Mixed with chopped feed, such as corn or oats, it makes a cheap and excellent food.

Thus we effect by mechanical means what the hard-working or decrepit animal is incapable of doing—perfect mastication."

New Varieties of Oats.

The signs of the times, even now in advance of the season, indicate very clearly that the excitement and speculation in the farming community for 1870, is not to be potatoes but oats.

The latter is a crop sadly wanting improvement and renovation, by new and more productive varieties. Wonderful things are told about the productiveness of Norway oats, and yet accounts greatly differ. It is probable impure seed may have been sent out to account for this. We see it stated that as much as 300 bushels of Norway oats has been raised to the acre, or at that rate. This is so entirely beyond anything known or heard of, as to be almost incredible. 200 stalks or stopls are said to have grown from a single seed. We have samples in our office of both varieties, procured from what is believed to be head quarters, or so called, and the Surprise oats is much the heaviest and best.

We shall take pleasure in laying the truth about these and other new varieties before our readers if there is any way to find it out. What are the reports about the Excelsior oats sent out by the Agricultural Department at Washington? We got a small package of this, and thought it was the beaviest and best oats we had ever seen.—Practical Farmer.

How to Cook Potatoes.

BAKED POTATOES.—Potatoes are more nutritious baked than they are cooked in any other manner; and they relish better with thoes who have not been accustomed to eat them without seasoning. Wash the potatoes clean, but do not soak them. Bake them as quickly as possible, without burning in the least. As soon as they are done, press each potato in a cloth, so as to crack the skin and allow the steam to escape. If this is omitted, the best potatoes will not be mealy. They should be brought immediately to the table, as they will soon become solid and lose their flavor.

STEAMED POTATOES.—Potatoes are much more nutritious and palatable if they are properly steamed, than they are boiled. Wash them clean and place them in a steamer over boiling water. If the potatoes are of a good quality, the secret of having them mealy and palatable is in steaming them very rapidly—as without a rapid condensation of steam and a detention of steam in the steamer by a close lid, the potatoes will be hard and appear not to be done, however long they may have been cooking. They should steam until the skin cracks, and a fork will easily penetrate the centre. If not to be brought to the table soon, they should continue to steam until wanted, as steamed potatoes become solid much sooner than boiled ones do.

James W. Jeffries, of Newlin, Chester Co., grew a pumpkin vine this season, to the length of 341 feet, which bore five pumpkins, weighing respectively 77, 59, 55, 46, and 38 pounds.

THE YOUNG FOLKS.

Bruin and the Tits.

ONE bright summer's day, as Mr. Bruin the bear and his friend the wolf were taking a walk together arm-in-arm in a wood, they heard a bird singing merrily. "Hist, hist! brother, stop a bit!" said the bear; "what can that dear bird be that sings so sweetly?" "My dear friend Bruin," said the wolf, "why, don't you know? that is his majesty the king of birds. We must take care to show him all kinds of honor." (Now between ourselves, you must know, Master Wolf was a wag, and was hoaxing Bruin: for the bird was after all neither more nor less than a tom-tit.) "If that be the case." said the bear gravely, "I should very much like to see the royal palace; so pray come along and show it me!" "Softly! my dear friend," said the wolf, "we cannot see it just yet, for her majesty is not at home; we had better call again when the queen comes home."

Soon afterwards the queen came with food in her beak, and she and the king her husband began to feed their young ones. "Now for it!" said the bear; "the family are at dinner." So he was about to follow them, and see what was to be seen. "Stop a little, Master Bruin!" said the wolf; "we must wait now till their majesties are gone again." So they marked the hole where they had seen the nest, and went away.

But the bear, being very eager to see the royal palace, soon slipped away, wishing his friend good morning, and came back again, and peeping into the nest, saw five or six young birds lying at the bottom of it. "What nonsense!" said Bruin; "this is not a royal palace; I never saw such a filthy place in my life; and you are no royal children, you little base-born brats!" As soon as the young tom-tits heard this they were very angry, and screamed out, "We are not base-born, you brute of a bear! our father and mother are good honest people; and you shall be well paid for your slander!" At this the bear grew frightened, and ran away to his den. But the young tits kept crying and screaming; and when their father and mother came home and showed them food, they all said, "we will not touch a bit, no, not the leg of fly, though we should die of hunger, till that rascal Bruin has been well trounced for calling us base-born brats." "Make yourselves easy, my darlings!" said the old king; "you may be sure he shall have his due."

So he went out and stood before the bear's den, and cried out with a loud voice, "Bruin the bear! thou hast shamefully slandered our lawful children: we therefore hereby declare bloody war against thee and thine; which shall never cease until thou hast had thy due, thou wicked one!" Now when the bear heard this, he called together the ox, the ass, the stag, and all the beasts of the earth, in order to talk about what he should do, and how to get up an army. And the tom-tit, on his side, gathered together all the birds of the air, both great and small; and a very large army of hornets, gnats, bees, and flies, and other insects.

As the time drew near when the war was to begin, the tom-tit sent out spies, to see who was commander-in-chief of the enemy's forces. And the gnat (who was by far the cleverest spy of them all) flew backwards and forwards in the wood where the bear's troops were, and at last hid himself under a leaf on a tree, close by which the orders of the day were given out. Then the bear; who was standing so near the tree that the gnat could hear all he said, called to the fox, and said, "Reynard, you are the cleverest of all the beasts; therefore you shall be our chief, and lead us to battle: but we must first agree upon some signal, by which we may know what you want us to do." "Behold," said the fox, "I have a fine, long, bushy tail, which looks like a plume of red feathers, and gives me a very warlike air; now bear in mind, when you see me raise up my tail, you may be sure that the battle goes well, and that you have nothing to do but to rush down upon the enemy with all your force. On the other hand, if I drop my tail, the day is lost; and you must run away as fast as you can." Now when the gnat had heard all this, she flew back to the tom-tit, and told him everything that had passed.

At length the day came when the battle was to be fought; and as soon as it was light, behold! the army of beasts came rushing forward, with such a fearful sound that the earth shook. And his majesty the tom-tit, with his troops, came flying along in warlike array, flapping and fluttering, and beating the air, so that it was quite frightful to hear; and both armies set themselves in order of battle upon the field. Now the tom-tit gave orders to a troop of hornets, that at the first onset they should march straight towards Captain Reynard, and fixing themselves about his tail, should sting him with all their might and main.

The hornets did as they were told; and when Reynard felt the first sting, he started aside and shook one of his legs, but still held up his tail with wonderful bravery. At the second sting he was forced to drop his tail for a moment. But when the third hornet had fixed itself, he could bear it no longer, but clapped his tail between his legs, and scampered away as fast as he could. As soon as the beasts saw this, they thought of course all was lost, and scoured across the country in the greatest dismay, leaving the birds masters of the field.

Then the king and queen flew back to their children, and said, "Now, children, eat, drink, and be merry, for the battle is won!" But the young birds said, "No! no! not till Master Bruin has humbly begged our pardon for calling us base-born."

So the king flew off to the bear's den, and cried out, 'Thou villain bear! come forthwith to my abode, and humbly beseech my children to forgive thee for the reproach thou hast cast upon them; for if thou wilt not do this, every bone in thy wretched body shall be broken into twenty pieces!"

Then the bear was forced to crawl out of his den very sulkily, and do what the king bade him; and after that the cloth was laid, and the table spread, and the young birds sat down together, and ate and drank, and made merry till midnight.

The British Postoffice Department made 23,000,000 net profit last year, while ours ran behind $5,000,000. No franking in England. The Queen, even who may write a letter by another hand, must put her own head on it to send it by mail.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the class of affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither arsenic, mercury, iodine, zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all round the world.

FLOOR COVERING!

A substitute for oil-cloth at one-third the cost.

This carpet is produced by a peculiar combination of strong, heavy paper, printed in ornamental colors, and coated with a tough, elastic, water proof enamel which receives the water, protects the colors and paper endures washing, and renders the carpet bright and beautiful in the extreme. Its advantages are as follows:—

Its cost renders it available to all classes; It is exceedingly smooth and glossy, and it accumulates next to no dust; It does not require to be taken up and cleaned like other carpet, and thus saves much labor and trouble; By re-coating with the Campillion Enamel occasionally as the case may require, (which costs but a trifle,) it will last indefinitely, even an age, and always appear new and bright; It is in no case whatever is placed upon the paper for wear, but exclusively upon the water-proof coating, the figured paper being used only to secure the colors. Paper has recently been used for a variety of purposes, even for trunks, roofs, floor bags and wearing apparel, but the first attempt, either in Europe or America, to convert it into carpet or floor covering, all concede it to be an entire success!

We have purchased the right for columbia county and can furnish the carpet to merchants at manufacturers prices.

All are invited to call and examine the goods at our store. M'KELVY, NEAL & CO.
